SIRVA. Specifically, Petitioner had no history of pain, inflammation, or dysfunction of the affected shoulder prior to intramuscular vaccine administration that would explain the alleged signs, symptoms, examination findings, and/or diagnostic studies occurring after vaccine injection; she more likely than not suffered the onset of pain within forty-eight hours of vaccine administration; her pain and reduced range of motion were limited to the shoulder in which the intramuscular vaccination was administered; and there is no other condition or abnormality present that would explain Petitioner's symptoms." Id. at 4. Respondent further agrees that "the records show that the case was timely filed, that the vaccine was received in the United States, and that Petitioner satisfies the statutory severity requirement by suffering the residual effects of her injury for more than six months after vaccine administration." Id.

In view of Respondent's position and the evidence of record, I find that Petitioner is entitled to compensation.
